

Ten Sets of Web Links

The Horse's Mouth

Sun's official Web site for Java → <http://www.oracle.com/index.html>

Tutorial/mini-course section's → http://education.oracle.com/pls/web_prod-plq-dad/db_pages.getpage?page_id=3&p_org_id=1080544&lang=US

Consumers of Java technology → <http://www.java.com/en/>

Programmers and developers interested in sharing Java technology → <http://www.java.net/>

Finding News, Reviews, and Sample Code

The JavaRanch: → <http://www.javaranch.com/>

Developer.com/Gamelan: → <http://www.developer.com/java>

The Giant Java Tree: → <http://www.gjt.org/>

The Java Boutique: → <http://www.javaboutique.internet.com/>

FreewareJava.com: → <http://www.freewarejava.com/>

Java Shareware: → <http://www.javashareware.com/>

Improving Your Code with Tutorials

Richard Baldwin's Web site: → <http://www.dickbaldwin.com/toc.htm>

IBM developerWorks: → <https://www.ibm.com/developerworks/training/>

ProgrammingTutorials.org: → <http://programmingtutorials.org/>

Finding Help on Newsgroups

Google → <http://groups.google.com/>

For postings specific to Java, look for the groups whose names begin with comp.lang.java.

Others: → comp.lang.java.programmer

_ comp.lang.java.help

_ comp.lang.java.api

Reading Documentation with Additional Commentary

→ <http://www.jdocs.com/>

Checking the FAQs for Useful Info

→ <http://javafaq.nu/>

Opinions and Advocacy

→ <http://blogs.oracle.com/>

→ <http://javablogs.com/Welcome.action>

→ <http://java.dzone.com/>

favorite blogs:-

Simon Phipps's blog: → <http://www.webmink.net/minkblog.htm>

Simon is Chief Technology Evangelist at Sun Microsystems. No matter what subject he chooses, Simon always speaks his mind.

Jonathan Schwartz's blog: → <http://blogs.oracle.com/jonathan/>

Jonathan is Chief Operating Officer at Sun Microsystems. When Jonathan speaks, people listen. And when Jonathan writes, people read.

Mary Smaragdis's blog: → <http://blogs.oracle.com/mary/>

Mary is Marketing Manager at Sun Microsystems. When you read Mary's blog, her enthusiasm gushes from the computer screen.

Looking for Java Jobs

SkillMarket → <http://www.mshiltonj.com/sm/>

→ <http://www.computerwork.com/jobs-by-skill/Java>

→ <http://www.javajobs.com.br/widgets/> & <http://www.javajobs.net/>

Finding Out More about Other Programming Languages

Éric Lévénez site: → <http://www.levenez.com/lang/>

HyperNews: → <http://www.hypernews.org/HyperNews/get/computing/lang-list.html>

Steinar Knutsen's Language list page: → <http://home.nvg.org/~sk/lang/lang.html>

Anything related to computing, → <http://foldoc.org/> — the Free On-Line Dictionary of Computing.

Everyone's Favorite Sites

→ <http://slashdot.org/>

you find news, reviews, and commentary on almost anything related to computing.

→ <http://sourceforge.net/> is the place to look for open source software of any kind. The SourceForge repository contains over 80,000 projects. At the SourceForge site, you can download software, read about works in process, contribute to existing projects, and even start a project of your own. SourceForge is a great site for programmers and developers at all levels of experience